

For marriages crafted by you.

π
TANISHQ
PRESENTS
RIVAĀH
WEDDING JEWELLERY

Exquisite Range of Bridal Jewellery

Engagement Rings

Neckwear Sets

Bridal Trousseau

Heartwarming

Thali Chains

Bangles

Vankis

Oddiyamam

Diamond Jewellery

The Kannadiga Bride

The Kannadiga bride, draped in a vivid Kanjeevaram silk, every fold of her saree speaks of heritage – bold borders, temple motifs, colours drawn from the earth and skies.

Her long braid, woven with fresh jasmine, carries the scent of home, memories and celebrations yet to come, a nod to tradition with a touch of her own style. The Kasina Sara, no longer just an heirloom, sits layered with other ornaments, merging legacy with a contemporary look – an image of reverence and reinvention.

Her jewellery isn't just a reflection of the past – it's an extension of her personality. Vankis with modern silhouettes, bold jhumkas that command attention, each piece is chosen with intent, each piece tells her story.

The Rivaah bride is tradition reimagined – elegant, fearless and brilliantly her own.

Nischithartha

At the Nischithartha, the first threads of forever are woven. Families gather, the muhurtha patrike is signed, and plates of kobbari mithai pass from hand to hand, sweetening the moment.

The Rivaah bride stands at the heart of it all, radiant in her silks, as an exquisite ring is slipped onto her finger, sealing not just an engagement but a promise of commitment. Her neckwear glimmers against her silk saree, each piece chosen with care.

Between the laughter, and pause between gestures, her new beginning quietly settles in — steady and unmistakably hers.

The modern bride charts her own course and her choices reflect that freedom. Our exquisite diamond rings detailed with vivid green stones, move between soft florals and bold geometrics, crafted to echo her many moods. Every design, a quiet nod to her personality.

There's something about diamond rings – their quiet brilliance, their unmistakable charm. There's a certain joy in sliding one on. Our collection of diamond rings is crafted to capture that feeling – modern, distinctive and made to shine with the bride of today.

A delicate play of gold and light. This 18KT necklace set, with baguette-cut diamonds and soft floral accents, sits easy on the neck — designed to feel effortless, look striking and catch the light just as she does.

Dripping in elegance, this Haram is a bridal masterpiece weaving love, tradition and self-adornment into every shimmering detail. Crafted in 22KT gold with diamonds in a closed setting, this layered long set with a pendant adorned with green stones and paired with 22KT jhumka, is more than just jewellery — it's the poetry of a wedding day.

For the modern bride, tradition is hers to shape. Closed settings in 22KT gold, lined with pearls and green stones, finished with diamonds. A necklace set that honours the old, made to belong to her now.

Jhumkis that sway with every step, their red and green stones glowing softly. Set in 18KT gold and diamonds, they frame the bride's face with a brilliance as steady as her spirit.

For the modern bride who values detail, these bangles in a closed setting feature green stones woven into floral and intricate patterns. Rooted in tradition but styled with subtle flair, they add quiet character to every movement.

Crafted in a gheroo antique finish, this temple jewellery set is made for the bride who radiates timeless elegance. The beaded borders and delicate drops sway gracefully, while the red stones and paisley-detailed bangles add just the right touch of heritage and boldness.

Reflecting the bride's understated elegance, where tradition meets grace. The floral pendant, paired with beaded layers, enhances the necklace and earrings, whose subtle temple motifs and vibrant accents celebrate her radiance.

This bridal set, a symphony of gold and tradition, showcases the heritage of temple artistry with intricate nakshi design – a testament to timeless craftsmanship. The vibrant necklace and earrings are crafted to make the bride glow radiantly on her special day.

This bridal set embodies temple jewellery's grandeur, where artistry meets tradition. The necklace, with coloured glass Kundan centers an exquisitely carved deity motif, surrounded by pearls and floral embellishments. Matching earrings echo this craftsmanship, lending graceful allure.

A tribute to timeless love, this Kaasu Mala bridal necklace radiates the opulence of tradition, each intricately crafted coin symbolizing prosperity and divine grace. Every delicate motif whispers stories of strength and the beauty of new beginnings.

An exquisite relic of heritage, this temple necklace blends divinity with timeless artistry. Sculpted deities sit alongside coloured Kundan, creating a vibrant interplay of form and feeling — a piece that speaks of grace, devotion and the quiet strength of self-love.

Harshina Shastra

The bride steps into the Harshina Shastra with simplicity and joy.

Her skin is streaked with haldi, her wrists stacked with delicate bangles that catch the light as she moves. Around her neck, finely crafted necklaces sit, thoughtfully chosen, reflecting the brightness of the day and everything waiting ahead.

Rooted in divinity and detailed with care, this necklace is a poetic ode to love, prosperity and the bride's graceful radiance. Sculpted deities, coloured Kundan, peacock motifs, and delicate hanging beads come together in a composition that honours tradition.

A regal expression of temple artistry, this oxidised matte necklace is adorned with glass and Kundan, green beads and Nakshi work. Peacock and floral motifs flow into a sculpted Goddess pendant, while cascading beads honour her femininity and love for tradition — a piece mirroring her union's depth and strength.

A golden web, a constellation of glass Kundan, where each gem is a tiny, luminous world. The coloured Kundan, like miniature suns caught in the grid pulses with vibrant hues, echoed in the earrings' soft chime. She feels empowered, the lattice illuminating her inherent brilliance.

A playful take on tradition — this short antique-finish Kundan necklace features heart-shaped motifs, coloured in red and green. Paired with matching earrings, it's equal parts charm and character, made for the bride who brings her own twist to the classics.

A layered glass Kundan necklace that plays with depth and detail — with subtle hints of green coloured Kundan and delicate dangling pendants. Paired with matching earrings, it's designed to stand out softly, with grace that lingers.

Bangles

In every shimmer of bridal bangles, there's a memory, a blessing, and a reminder that some bonds, like the circles they form, have no end. They are a reflection of love, joy and everything the bride carries forward.

With a flourish of gold outlined with pearls, these bangles are a curated collection, not just adornment, but a personal legacy for the modern bride. Their textured surfaces and gem-kissed details, are designed to make her wrists a canvas of timeless romance and regal charm.

Echoes of ages distilled into wearable art, these bangles in their antique gold embrace, are a celebration of lasting beauty. The subtle diamonds, like stardust caught in time, lend a touch of an everlasting heirloom.

Elegance in its most elemental form, these bangles crafted from gold, are designed to complement her facets. Their timeless simplicity makes them a versatile and cherished addition to her bridal trousseau.

Liquid gold sculpted into light, these bangles are a testament to refined simplicity. Their subtly textured surfaces catch and reflect light with a gentle, captivating brilliance.

A spectrum of enamel artistry and gemstone geometry, make these bangles a modern statement piece. Their bold colour play and delicate patterns, designed to adorn her wrists with a touch of regal charm, make them timeless.

A love story told in gold and gemstones. The intricate filigree and vibrant stones of these bangles, craft a delicate dance of heritage and contemporary allure.

A seamless circle of warmth, a touch of pure luxury, these bangles are a celebration of understated elegance. Their luminous Kundan setting add a timeless, regal touch to their minimalist design.

Stacked on the bride's wrists, antique-finish kadas and bangles with bold kemp settings, pops of red and the fine detail of nakshi work. Temple-inspired, but unmistakably hers. A nod to the past, styled for now.

For the modern bride who carries her roots with heartfelt pride. This bangle brings together glass Kundan, red and green stones and delicate pearl borders. At its heart, motifs of Goddess and peacocks — symbols of grace and inner strength.

The bride's wrists glow with the timeless richness of these gold bangles. Temple motifs trace its length, unfolding into delicate floral patterns. Green stones lend their vivid touch, pearls sit lightly and diamonds catch the eye. Every element in harmony, bringing together tradition, detail and heritage.

For the bride who balances old and new, this gold bangle brings temple artistry to life. Floral motifs bloom across its broad form, set with glass Kundan and hints of green in a warm gheraa finish. Made to rest with poised pride as she moves forward, rooted yet radiant.

Adorned kada blends temple-inspired design with floral patterns, brought to life through intricate detailing of fiery stones in vibrant hues of seamless allure. A piece rooted in tradition, styled with confidence for the modern bride.

Shubha Muhurtha

The Shubh Muhurtha arrives with sunlight streaming in, saree pleats gathered, and gentle conversations echoing through the house. There's an unspoken rhythm to it all, as final touches fall into place.

Around the bride's neck, a delicate Kasi Sara glimmers softly, and slender bangles encircle her wrists. A finely crafted Oddiyanam rests lightly at her waist – each piece carefully chosen to reflect the beauty of the moment.

In these small, shining details, the morning finds its meaning. Her jewellery effortlessly becoming part of the calm, as she steps into her new beginning.

Golden textures and gemstone accents weave together in this broad necklace, radiating a refined traditional charm. The pear-shaped pendant, with its intricate center and delicate fringe, adds understated opulence to the bride's neckline.

Centered around a grand circular pendant, this meticulously detailed necklace and earring set embodies harmony and eternity. Intricate gold craftsmanship, accented with delicate red and green stones, brings timeless beauty to each detail.

With a refined artistry evident in its delicate enamel and gold detailing, this bridal set evokes a sense of timeless opulence. The ornate pendant with ear chains, earrings and bangles, lends a regal charm to the bride's ensemble.

With a halo of meticulously sculpted spiked pattern, this temple-inspired jewellery set embodies an unparalleled sense of majesty. The ornate pendant and earrings bestow timeless allure upon the bride, reflecting tradition with a regal touch.

Where pearl and emerald drops meet the richness of tradition, this temple jewellery necklace and earring set celebrates heritage in every detail. Glass and coloured Kundan frame the intricately rendered Goddess centrepiece, with a delicate fringe of stones completing the story. It's an ode to craftsmanship, worn with serene power.

Form and finish perfected in precious metal, define this gold bridal set. Its intricate filigree and traditional motifs, designed to drape the bride in radiant splendor, celebrate the timeless beauty of Indian craftsmanship.

Two vankis, each rooted in tradition yet crafted for the bride of today – one with a graceful peacock motif and the other in gold, featuring the auspicious form of a Goddess, both set in vibrant red and green stones. Together, they strike a balance between tradition and modernity, just like her.

A symbol of strength and protection, this gold vanki curves gracefully around in a rich gherao finish. At its centre sits a finely carved Goddess motif, set in traditional kemp, framed by red stones and delicate gold beads. An heirloom of meaning — worn by the bride as she steps into her new beginning.

Wedding

As mango leaves sway gently above the mandapam and guests begin to gather, the air fills with hope and joy. Jasmine strands are passed from hand to hand, tucked into braids, filling the space with familiar fragrance.

The bride steps forward in her Kanjeevaram — haaram resting elegantly, vadanam shining at her waist, vankis encircling her arms. She stands poised, radiant, ready to step into forever.

Her family draws closer as she holds the coconut and betel leaf, the thaali chain soon tied around her neck — a gesture as timeless as the vows exchanged. In this moment, she is surrounded by her choices, big and small, that have led her here.

For the modern bride who embraces and redefines every tradition. These temple jewellery jhumkis, crafted in a matte gheroo finish with a classic kemp setting, are accented with vivid red stones. Bold in form, timeless in detail — made to move with her, every step of the way.

Crafted in antique-finish gold, this choker showcases the finesse of temple artistry. Designed to honour legacy, glass and coloured Kundan in red and green lend vibrant contrast, while intricate detailing and traditional motifs add depth and meaning.

Crafted for the bride who weaves her story into every tradition. This antique-finish temple jewellery choker, adorned with south glass Kundan, rich red and green Kundan and intricate motifs, exudes quiet strength and an unmistakable presence — perfect for her bridal radiance.

A haaram featuring temple motifs carved with precision, coloured Kundan in rich red and green. Finished in an antique tone and softened with delicate pearls and red droplets, it's intricate, bold and rooted. Made for the bride who wears heritage not as a memory, but as her own statement.

This antique-finish haaram is crowned with a finely sculpted Goddess centrepiece. Coloured Kundan in pink, red and green adds depth, while delicate green droplets bring gentle movement.

Made for the bride who knows how to make tradition her own. This antique-finish temple jewellery set features a choker and necklace detailed with South glass Kundan, coloured Kundan in red and green and intricate peacock motifs. Whether worn together or apart, they add an unmistakable presence to her bridal look.

Like petals in rhythm, the layered necklace flows between red and green stones, catching light in glimmering flashes. Gold beads soften the structure, while uncut diamonds add timeless brilliance. With matching bangles echoing its intricacy, the set doesn't just sit pretty — it flows, frames and finishes every bridal look with intention.

A collection of rings that share the same attention to craft. Set in antique finishes, from warm gherao to oxidised textures, each piece features Kundan in red and green. Some are bold with gold dangles, others delicate, like the floral-shaped ring or the one edged with subtle heart motifs. Designed to be mixed, matched or worn alone, each one adds its own charm.

A modern take on the traditional Kaasu Mala, the layered necklace features uncut diamonds and subtle hints of green, offering a fresh, fluid silhouette. It's paired with a choker of uncut diamonds in an open setting, designed with a delicate lattice-like pattern and deep red accents. With matching earrings, the bride carries a look that's timelessly unforgettable.

Crafted in antique-finish gold, this temple jewellery set draws inspiration from the Goddess, with lotus motifs. Coloured Kundan, delicate green drops and hints of red stones bring the design to life.

For the bride who finds meaning in every detail.
This antique-finish temple jewellery set features glass and coloured Kundan in rich red and green, framed with pearl edging and finished with soft green droplets.

A golden narrative etched in temple artistry, this oddiyanam is a celebration of the modern bride's powerful grace and rooted heritage. Adorned with Goddess' blessings and gemstone brilliance, this divine detail adds a touch of royalty.

At the centre of this gold oddiyanam, a delicately carved Goddess motif sits gracefully. Green drops sway gently along its edge, touched with hints of red stones and the faintest glimmer of pearls. Crafted for the bride of today – where every element holds tradition, yet speaks in her voice.

Adorned in 18 KT gold, diamonds and pearls, she embodies a timeless spirit, her style effortlessly versatile. The choker, the oddiyanam — every piece a radiant dance of light and colour. Diamonds accentuate her beauty, pearls cascade with grace and the stones shifting red to green, whisper her ever-changing moods.

Haaram

Symbolising prosperity and tradition, the haaram is a long, layered necklace often crafted in gold and adorned with intricate motifs or gemstones.

More than an ornament, it embodies strength and the timeless beauty of South Indian heritage.

The bride stands resplendent in gold — her haaram and necklace set glowing in antique gherao tones. Mango motifs ripple across the piece in a traditional kemp setting, with subtle touches of red and green adding nuanced contrast. Crafted to complement her presence, not overpower it.

Every element of this haaram tells a story — from the antique-finish gold to the intricate temple motifs of peacocks and elephants. Set with South glass and coloured Kundan in vivid red and green and finished with pearl and green drops, this is tradition, worn with unmistakable grace.

A timeless classic, the Kaasu Mala comes to life in antique gherao tones — its rows of gold coins echoing the richness of temple jewellery. A subtle hint of red adds just the right touch of colour, crafted for the bride who carries heritage with radiant confidence.

Rooted in heritage, yet designed to stand out — this broad glass Kundan necklace features red and green coloured Kundan, an antique temple finish and a striking pendant. A pearl border traces its edges, adding softness to its bold silhouette.

A classic that never fades — rows of polished gold beads strung seamlessly, touched with hints of red in a traditional kemp setting. Paired with a matching necklace with hints red and green, it's perfect for the bride who balances simplicity and splendour with effortless ease.

Thaali Chains

The thali is more than a chain, it binds two souls, two families, and generations of tradition.

Traditionally crafted in gold, each thali carries regional motifs and symbols, holding within it the sacred promises made and honoured for a lifetime.

Crafted in pure 22KT gold, these thali chains shine with delicate filigree and subtle sparkle. As the bride wears it, the gold catches the light — resting softly against her neckline, a symbol of her sacred bond and timeless love.

A slender thread of 22KT gold, where ancient symbols meet modern grace, this thali chain features an intricate floral motif pendant and scattered diamond-accented tokens. Their gentle gleam reflects the quiet poetry of a shared journey, making her glow with an ethereal radiance.

Tiny constellations of devotion, these 22 KT gold thali chains, where diamond-accented floral motifs intertwine with sacred symbols, hold stories close. Creating a subtle halo, they suggest a grace that emanates from within.

Reception

Under the stars, as the couple celebrates with those who matter most, the bride gleams — adorned in diamonds, radiant in the soft evening glow. Guests are greeted, the air alive with gentle music, while her necklace glistens, catching the light as she moves effortlessly through the crowd.

As well wishes are offered and greetings exchanged, her bangles sing softly — a delicate chime that lingers with every smile and every embrace.

In this moment, beneath the open sky, she shines not just in what she wears, but in the love that surrounds her — a night etched in light and laughter.

A layered diamond necklace accented with deep red stones and delicate drops — crafted to sit beautifully along the neck, catching the light with every turn. Elegant without being overpowering, it's designed for the bride of today.

In 18KT gold, paisley motifs take shape, edged with green stones and diamonds. Every curve draws from tradition, but leaves room for the bride to wear it her way.

A diamond set defined by its delicacy — featuring a necklace, haaram, earrings, ring and nethi chutti, all crafted with fine detailing. The green and blue stones can be interchanged, allowing the bride to shift the palette. Elegant, versatile and thoughtfully put together, the set mirrors the unwavering confidence she carries.

A contemporary take on tradition, this 18KT gold pair of bangles sparkles with open-set diamonds, accented by striking green and red stones. Lightweight, luminous and full of character, they're crafted to move with her.

Layered crescent-shaped panels in glass Kundan form the heart of this striking set, detailed with red coloured Kundan and finished with soft gold bead droplets. Bold yet fluid, it frames the neckline with subtle drama. This set plays with shape, colour and tradition — all in perfect sync.

An antique-finish glass Kundan set brought to life with red and green coloured Kundan, finished with delicate green droplets and dangling pendants. It's traditional in form, but full of character — made for the bride who blends heritage with her own rhythm.

A bold, antique-finish necklace crafted in glass Kundan — broad in silhouette and rich in detail. Its stone-heavy design is edged with soft green droplets that bring movement and freshness. Paired with matching earrings, this set is made for moments that call for presence.

For the modern bride who is as rooted as she is forward-looking. Green coloured Kundan adds a fresh vibrance, while dangling pendants introduce a playful charm. The set strikes the perfect balance between heritage and individuality.

A delicate golden lattice, intricately woven with glass Kundan, graces her neck, its geometric beauty a testament to skilled artistry. The coloured Kundan, in soft rose hues, contrasts with the verdant jade drops, mirroring the warmth and tranquility within her.

A stunning Kundan choker, intricately designed with red coloured Kundan, edged with delicate beads that add texture to its graceful form. Floral motifs flow across the piece, while dangling gold accents bring movement and a touch of elegance. This set offers a perfect balance of tradition and contemporary beauty.

A golden river, the Kaliganthi's strands woven with glass Kundan and dangling pendants, flows across her neckline. The subtle tones of coloured Kundan, interspersed with the pearls' soft glow hint at hidden depths, mirrored in the earrings' bountiful display. She feels draped in a wealth of tradition, a tangible representation of her blessings.

A layered cheker in glass Kundan, designed for the modern bride, who leans into heritage with her own edge. Coloured Kundan in red and green brings vibrance, while pearl edging on top add fluidity. Structured yet striking, this piece balances old-world craftsmanship with a fresh, contemporary spirit.

A choker that carries the weight of craft and colour – set in a dusky oxidised finish, it brings together glass Kundan with vivid hues of blue, red and green. Worn by the bride who embraces the richness of tradition, with a spirit entirely her own.

Each layer catches the light differently — red, green and flashes of blue Kundan woven into a cascade of glass. A bold pendant draws the eye to the centre, framed by soft green droplets that sway with every step. This bridal set is not just jewellery — its movement, memory and meaning, all at once.

Bold and modern, these wide Kundan bangles feature a geometric pattern, accented with subtle hints of green coloured Kundan. Their clean, striking design blends tradition with contemporary flair, making them the perfect statement for the modern bride who embraces elegance with edge.

A broad sweep of gold, where every curve holds intention. Glass Kundan glows from within, red stones shimmer and a whisper of green traces the pieces in subtle contrast. In its antique gheroo finish, the bangle sits bold on her wrist, as a reflection of how she feels – assured and entirely herself.

For marriages crafted by you

